The works were running night and day on a portage bridge for the Erie railroad, and 400 or 500 men were employed. Insurance $100,000. The loss is already twice that sum. The third floor has been used as a silk factory and the fire began there. F. G. Watson & Co., silk manufacturers, lose about $50,000. Insured. Chas. S. Martin, of New York, silk makers, lose $10,000.

THE TILTON-BEECHER CASE.

No Verdict—Beecher Interviewed.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Beecher was interviewed Sunday on the railroad train by a World reporter, to whom he expressed a conviction that the jury stands eleven in his favor to one against; says he knows there is a recalcitrant juror, having been warned about him long ago. He also says Judge Neilson expressed the intention of keeping the jury [illegible] at a verdict.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The jury in the Tilton-Beecher case have not yet agreed upon a verdict, nor have they informed the Judge of their inability to agree. Crowds continue in the neighborhood of the court.

A Message from the Jury.

Soon after noon the Judge received a message from the jury, to which he replied, but no information could be obtained as to the contents. In connection with the note, however, counsel of both sides had a brief consultation with the Judge.

"The Tilton Man."

NEW YORK, June 28.—The Tilton man who is keeping the Beecher jury is believed to be Jeffries, who it was discovered soon after the trial began, to be Tilton's personal friend.

Another Message, but no News.

Courtesies Among the Great.

DUBLIN, June 28.—The Lord Mayor of London and suite arrived this morning. They were called on by the Lord Mayor and corporation of Dublin in state, and conducted to the Mansion house. They afterwards attended a review of 6,000 troops in Phœnix park. The American rifle team and party were also at the review and enthusiastically greeted. Weather unfavorable. Attendance small. This is the first time the Lord Mayor of London has visited Ireland in state.

Bank of England.

LONDON, June 28.—Amount of bullion gone into the Bank of England on balance to-day 750 pounds.

PRINTERS' WAGES IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—About the time the Daily Chronicle "ratted" its office a communication was addressed by the employing printers to the Columbia Typographical Union asking a reduction of the price of composition from 60 to 50 cents per thousand and of wages from $24 to $20 per week for eight hours per day. At a meeting of the society on Sunday a committee to whom the matter had been referred submitted a voluminous report in which they recommended that the society do not accede to the request of the employing printers. It is understood that the city printers very generally favor a reduction, but they are greatly outnumbered by the employees of the Government printing office, who control the action of the Union. It has been announced that in the event of a refusal the employees would unite to inaugurate a general system and attempt to break up the Union, but the Republican and Star to-day each declare they have no such intentions. The Tr[illegible], issued monthly by members of the printers' association, supports the Union. The [illegible] is also in sympathy with the type setters, and the job offices are not strong enough to attempt a fight, Columbia Typographical Union being one of the strongest in the country. An attempt will doubtless be made at the meeting of Congress to reduce the rates at the Government printing office by legislation under the leadership of the proprietor of the Chronicle.

A NEW RAPE OF THE LOCK.—A most malicious, mischievous and daring theft occurred at the residence of a Fifth avenue merchant, in Oakland, a few afternoons ago, whereby a fascinating and pretty damsel lost a luxurious head of natural golden hair. She was a guest at her friend's house, and after a dinner nap arose to find herself as destitute of hair as an infant. She was frightened at her own appearance, and alarmed the household with her screams of terror and lamentation. A thorough search of the dwelling was fruitless, nor was any trace discovered of the stolen hair. This affair is involved in mystery. No stranger was seen about the premises that day, and the girl was entirely unconscious of the villainous theft until the discovery of her loss was made. It is conjectured that she was drugged, and that no unpracticed hand performed the operation. A singular feature of the mystery is, that whosoever committed the theft seemed only to covet the golden ringlets, as an abundance of valuable jewelry and a small sum of money on an uncovered table in the room remained untouched. The latter circumstance leads to the further conjecture that some jealous girl sought, in this more despicable than romantic way, to deface the beauty of the afflicted damsel by robbing her of its conspicuous glory.—Pittsburgh Gazette.

One of the few remaining French survivors of Waterloo, the Marquis de Blague, has just died. He was of Cambronne's guard, and always denied that the commander made use of the well known phrase, "the guard dies but never surrenders."

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Knocking Down an Assessment.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—The board of supervisors sitting to-day as a board of equalization knocked several millions off the assessment roll. Fifty per cent. was taken off the superstructure of all street railroads. All savings banks in the city had assessments reduced to $1,000 in each case. From $100,000 to $300,000 were taken off the assessment of various capitalists. The Gas Light Co. is reduced from $7,000,000 to $5,000,000. The application of the Pacific Mail Co. to have their assessment on their vessels stricken off was denied.

Political.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Delegates to the Democratic State Convention have been swarming during the afternoon in the neighborhood of the Cosmopolitan Hotel. It is impossible at present to form any opinion as to who will obtain nominations, as there are many candidates for each position. This much, however, is considered certain, that the contest for governor is virtually narrowed down to a triangular fight between Findley, Irwin and Johnson. According to present appearances Findley will at first show the most numerical strength.

Thunder Storms.

SAN DIEGO, June 28.—This vicinity has been visited during the past twenty-four hours with a succession of thunder and lightning storms, accompanied by showers of rain, in some localities very heavy. It appeared to be heaviest to the southeast.

Held to Answer.

W. S. Gregg, Jr., who assaulted C. P. Taggart Saturday, was held to bail in the sum of $1,000 to appear for examination on a charge of assault with intent to kill. The affair has created considerable excitement, both parties being prominent citizens.

NEVADA.

Counterfeiters Escape from Jail.

HAMILTON, June 28.—T. Selden and A. Wager, two men recently committed from Hamilton to the county jail upon a charge of passing counterfeit five-dollar notes of the Traders' First National Bank of Chicago, broke jail some time Sunday night last or this morning. They sawed off the bolts which fastened their cell door and escaping to the corridor dug their way out of the brick wall and made good their escape. A reward of $300 has been offered by the county commissioners for their capture and return.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

An Insane Woman Mutilates her Child with a Hatchet.

VICTORIA, June 28.—A poor woman, a resident of View street, in a fit of insanity on Saturday night came home, took a hatchet and chopped in a shocking manner the head of her little boy, about ten years of age, who was lying asleep in bed. Had not the police, who have been in the habit of watching her for some time, run in, a second child would have been similarly hacked. The woman was taken to prison. The mutilated boy is not expected to recover and was taken to the Royal hospital for treatment. The mother was subsequently taken to the insane asylum.

OREGON CITY ITEMS.

The W. T. Co.'s new steamboat Active was launched to-day (Monday, 28th) at the company's dock. She is evidently intended for a dry weather craft, as she only drew 5½ inches of water without boiler or engines. She is intended to carry any amount of freight up to 400 tons, according to the stage of water.

The pickers are running again at the woolen mills, and they are erecting a picker house around the damaged though still serviceable machinery. Through the energetic efforts of Messrs. Jacobs the mill was enabled to run a full set of hands within a day or two after the fire and none were discharged. Considering the extent of the conflagration this speaks well indeed for the energy and efficiency of the officers of the company.

The boys here are discussing the proposition to put the office of county clerk up at auction and sell it to the highest bidder on the coming 4th of July. The clerk has been afflicted with the quartz mania—he's got it bad, a violent attack—and has been for some time past wildly chasing the snows of the Cascade Mountains back toward the summit, and studying the mysteries of dips and trends and croppings, leaving his poor fatherless office to buffet with the world alone. We hope his arduous search may be rewarded, but if he don't come home pretty soon his friends will cast lots for his raiment.

The Alden Fruit-Drying Company of this place have their building ready for the machinery, which is now on the way. They expect to have everything in readiness to dry the early fall fruit, of which the prospect is there will be a plentiful supply. It is said the company have invested about $10,000 in this venture, and it is to be hoped they will meet with such success as will encourage others to invest their capital in like manner and so develop the unquestionably great fruit growing resources of this part of the State. The companies that have ventured to invest so much capital in an untried field deserve the reward that pioneers always deserve, and there is every reason to believe they will meet with all the success in this matter they anticipate.

THE TERRITORIES.

The Tribune says Rev. Hammond will go to Seattle.

The first number of the Daily Pacific Tribune from Seattle has reached us.

Ten thousand feet of lumber fell into the Sound by the breaking down of a wharf at Seattle last week.

The Seattle Tribune says the Franklin and Puyallup postoffices have always been on wheels and have been shifted from place to place to suit the convenience of the different postmasters. Both offices are now at their original places of location.

Old hop yards on the Puyallup are nearly ready to be lain by. The prospects for a good crop from the old yards are excellent. The young yards look as though they needed a doctor. Occasioned by the backwardness of the season the young vines are looking rather sickly. Nearly 300 acres of new hops were planted in this valley last spring.

The Tribune of the 24th says: "Seattle harbor last night was a handsome scene, and hundreds were out to view it. At 10 o'clock seven large sailing vessels were riding at anchor off the town, and the wharves were lined with steamers and small boats. Besides the vessels above enumerated, there were the schooners Fauntleroy, Granger and C. C. Perkins in port and the steamers North Pacific, J. B. Libby, Mastick, Isabel, Favorite, Zephyr, Addie, Comet, Bonat, Lively and the new boat at the machine shop—23 vessels all told."

The members of Salem Grange had a harvest feast last Saturday and had a good time.

OREGON.

Gen. Joseph Lane will deliver the oration in Roseburg July 5th.

I. I. [illegible] orates for the celebration at Drain's Station on July 3d.

Oakland Grange have about 10,000 pounds of wool for sale and offer it to the highest bidder.

Considerable wool was delivered in Roseburg last week, but many parties are holding for higher prices.

The Universalist church and the Grange warreth over the use of the new church building at Cove, Union Co.

Salem farmers will send a delegation to Junction to add to the celebration of the national anniversary at that place.

John Parrott was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary for burning the old tannery building in East Salem.

A severe hail storm visited the Cove Sunday before last, but beyond knocking some young fruit from the trees did no perceptible damage.

Rev. Mr. Kay, an Episcopal minister who will have charge of the work of that denomination in Grand Ronde valley, has arrived in his new field of labor.

Mr. Reed, superintendent of Carson mines on Grand Ronde river, reports about twenty men employed, and the prospect for the summer run highly encouraging.

A man who had worked awhile in the Roseburg Plaindealer office collected a few subscriptions for that paper last week and sloped for California. The editor is justly indignant.

The Blue Mountain University at La Grande closed its annual term on Friday last with a picnic. The opening year of the school has been prosperous. The next year will open on the first Monday in September.

Sealed proposals for building the Episcopal church at Pendleton were opened last Saturday in accordance with previous announcement, and the contract was finally awarded to Messrs. Mays & Gale, of Weston.

Uncle Charley Applegate & Sons, in Yoncalla, have 1,200 acres in wheat this year and it is looking splendid. They have some of the best land in Douglas county and usually farm extensively, but this is the largest crop of wheat ever raised on their place.

The prospects for the Union County Fair, which commences the 20th of September, are very brilliant. The display of fine stock will no doubt be better than ever before, and nothing will be left undone to make the third annual fair of the U. C. A. S. a grand success.

From S. E. Francis, a resident of the Wallowa valley, the Sentinel learns that the stock in that country is looking very well, considering the severe winter just passed, and from present appearances there will be a most abundant yield of all kinds of vegetables and grain.

The La Grande Sentinel says: "At the Universalist State convention which met in the Cove recently, besides attending to the usual business of such bodies, Rev. A. Morrison was sent on the missionary work. He intends to go among the heathens down about Pendleton and Walla Walla."

From W. C. Cochrane, of Amity, the Record learns that the crops in that region could not look better. Late sown grain is doing as well as possible and the prospect of a large crop is perfect. This is the report from all sections of our State, and if wheat even bears an average price we may expect abundant prosperity.

Mr. David Newsom informs the Statesman that the crop prospects of Howell Prairie were never better than at present. They have had soaking summer rains, and everything is growing first rate. The farmers are getting their harvesting machinery in trim and everybody is anticipating a bountiful yield of all kinds of crops.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the Secretary of State by the Oregon Boot and Shoe Company; object, manufacturing and selling of boots, shoes, leather and other articles and the buying and selling of real estate and a general jobbing business. Principal place of business, Portland, with power to establish places of manufactory and agencies at the places and to employ convict and other labor. Capital stock $20,000, in $50 shares.

Last Saturday, while some workmen were engaged in digging the mill ditch some 200 yards above the reservoir at Pendleton, they excavated the skull and most all the other bones of a human skeleton. Considerable speculation has been indulged as to who he was and where he came from and how and when and by whom killed. From the fact that the bones were quite sound it is very evident to us that they have not lain there a very great length of time.

In the case of Mrs. Briggs, on trial at Jacksonville last week, the defendant being charged with the murder of a schoolmaster in Josephine county, the jury, after being out about twelve hours, returned their verdict of manslaughter. The counsel for the defendant then moved for a stay of judgment and a new trial, which was overruled. She was sentenced to a fine of $25 and the costs of the case and five years in the penitentiary. Counsel then gave notice of an appeal to the supreme court, and asked that pending the appeal she be discharged on bail, which was granted, and bail fixed at $8,000, which was obtained.

The total loss by the burning of Odd Fellows Hall at Pendleton was $2,600, divided as follows: Odd Fellows $1,500, Masons $600, Good Templars $100, J. M. Bentley $400. The hall had but recently been purchased by the Odd Fellows. It was used by them and the Masons and Good Templars, and the lower story was occupied by J. M. Bentley as a carpenter's shop. All the regalia, charters and most all the books, papers, etc., of each of these lodges were consumed. The Odd Fellows not only owned the building, but the furniture, such as chairs, tables, desks, carpets, lamps, etc. The hall was insured for $600, but except this, everything is a total loss.

A letter from Galice creek to the Jacksonville Sentinel says: "I found the ledge opened some thirty or forty feet from the water's edge (Rogue river) and is uncovered fifteen to eighteen feet and is well defined. The wall rock on either side is of a dark green color, while the ledge rock is white and very easily pulverized. The ledge where they are down on it the deepest I should judge to be about two feet wide. One can clearly see that the ledge is getting wider as they go down on it, and I think they have sunk on the solid ledge from three to three and a half feet. The entire ledge as far as uncovered is perfectly speckled with the precious metal. I took out one piece of rock weighing 1½ pounds in which no gold was visible to the eye, and after taking this to my residence on Slate creek and showing it to several persons I concluded to break it open, and found the inside almost lined with gold. I think the bar where the ledge is is not more than one hundred yards in width, and up to this time I do not know that it has been discovered on the mountain, which is very steep and at least one thousand feet high, but they have traced it across the river, and I have just the same kind of rock and very rich with gold."

The Eastern Budget learns from Cairo that M. De Lesseps has again been in negotiation with the powers respecting the Suez Canal dues. The revenue of the canal being now more than 30,000,000 francs a year, the tariff should, according to the rule laid down by the International Commission, be lowered. M. De Lesseps, however, argues that a reduction of the dues is impossible, as extraordinary expenses will have to be incurred this year for the canal. The entrance at Port Said is to be deepened and otherwise improved, the harbor at Lake Timsah must be enlarged, and the bend in the canal at Ramleh must be removed in order to facilitate the navigation. These works alone would cost at least 30,000,000 francs. M. De Lesseps has sent his son to Constantinople to continue the negotiations on this question.

OUR SALEM LETTER.

SALEM, June 27, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The week just closed has been rather an important one in the way of interesting events, and at this moment Salemites are enjoying a season of rest after several days of almost dissipation in their anxiety to keep up with the time and see and hear all that is going on around them. And it is a day of rest in every sense of the word. It is the day set aside by the Christian world to recuperate after the toils of the preceding six days, and in no town or city on the Pacific slope is it more universally observed than here in Salem, which, as many of your readers are aware, has been dubbed the "city of churches"—an appellation that has arisen no doubt from the myriad of spires pointing heavenward within its corporate limits. Business, with a very few exceptions, is suspended, and merchants and mechanics alike devote the day to religious or worldly enjoyments, as the case may be. While we perhaps have not the Sunday amusements indulged in by more metropolitan neighbors, we have nevertheless more quiet and rational modes of spending our Sabbaths in an enjoyable and interesting manner. To-day, for instance, no less than 200 capitolians have folded their tents and stolen quietly away to Dixie, where the annual campmeeting of the Christian church is and has been under full headway for the past ten days. Almost every available vehicle in the city has been pressed [illegible] loaded down with those seeking diversity of some kind, with motives as varied as are the pleasure seekers. While some no doubt attend for the purpose of assisting in the spread of the Gospel, the majority of them we dare say attend for the mere novelty of the thing. Be the motives what they may, thousands no doubt will be present on the grounds to-day.

COURT MATTERS.

The Marion county circuit court has been grinding all the week and a number of important cases have been disposed of, chief among which, perhaps, have been those of the State vs. Parrott and Hicklin, charged with setting fire to the old tannery building located just outside the city limits. A large crowd was in attendance at the trial and considerable interest was manifested in the case. So frequent had become incendiary fires that when the parties were at first arrested public indignation was very strong against them. Like the generality of cases, however, time healed the wounds somewhat, and as the trial progressed public sentiment veered around in their favor to a great degree, and when at last on separate trials Parrott was convicted and Hicklin acquitted, a strong feeling of sympathy was manifested for the unfortunate youth, and more especially for his aged mother, a most estimable lady, who is almost heartbroken over her son's disgrace. He was sentenced to one year's confinement in the penitentiary. The case will be carried up to the supreme court, which meets the 17th of next month, and meanwhile petitions will be circulated for his pardon. Very many think he is a monomaniac on that subject and weak minded on general principles. The petition for executive clemency will undoubtedly be numerously signed.

The grand jury found numerous indictments, among which were some against prominent saloon keepers for selling liquor on Sunday. The more fortunate ones closed their saloons while the grand jury was in session, and thus escaped detection. Now that that body have disbanded they are again open, and thus it is our Sunday liquor law is observed. Olie George Russell, convicted of forging a check, was sent up for a term of five years. Contrary to the expectation of many of his friends the grand jury succeeded in finding a true bill against Arthur Cox, charged with aiding prisoners to escape, and his trial will take place the coming week, he having already entered a plea of not guilty. Rumor says that the same grand jury found a true bill against a prominent liquor dealer on the charge of an attempt to commit rape. The matter is being kept as quiet as possible, and as many claim it is a put up job, it having every appearance of that kind, we forbear mentioning names for the time being.

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY.

The most important events of the week have transpired within the walls of the Willamette University, an institution of learning whose reputation is now firmly established, and a graduate of which is considered way up in educational advantages. Presided over by a corps of unusually efficient teachers, and under the immediate personal supervision of that prince of educators, Prof. T. M. Gatch, it has become a power in the land and is yearly sending forth men and women endowed with rare educational advantages who are destined to assume important responsibilities in the affairs of the unknown hereafter. Commencement week with its attendant festivities has become part and parcel of Salem, and its annual recurrence is looked forward to by all with almost eager interest. The Faculty anticipate pleasure in showing to the world that the labors of the preceding year have not been in vain, and dote with pride on their graduating class as partial evidence of their success as educators of the human mind. The graduates feel proud of their success, their hard earned parchments being an open sesame to a broad field of usefulness, to say nothing of their chances for wealth and fame as they proceed step by step upward or onward in the events of after life. The Alumni welcome them with unassumed cordiality, proud in having their number increased year by year. And last but not least the students view their success with pleasure and look anxiously forward to the time when they too may be thus honored, while patrons and friends of the institution rejoice in its success as a public enterprise and benefactor.

The examinations were concluded over a week ago and passed off in a manner satisfactory to all parties interested. Rev. Bentley, of your city, delivered the address before the literary societies connected with the university on Monday evening last to a large and appreciative audience. It was an able effort and thoroughly enjoyed by every one present. At its close the Hesperian and Concordia societies held their annual reunion in their hall, which proved a very pleasant affair. Short and spicy speeches were indulged in by the members and invited guests, and strawberries and cream were discussed with keen relish, mind and body being refreshed alike by the exercises of the hour. The two societies are in a most flourishing condition and are destined to prosper as they increase in age. Long may they wave to exert a power for good among their members.

PRIZE SPEAKING.

The public perhaps felt as much interested in Tuesday afternoon's exercises as in any during the week, it being the time set apart for the prize speaking. In accordance with the usual custom the faculty offered two gold medals to be competed for by members elected from the four different literary societies of the school, they being awarded to the two best declaimers, one being for the ladies and the other for the gentlemen. Miss Bertha Moores, of this city, was chosen to represent the Athenæum; Jake L. Wortman, of Oregon City, the Alkas; Miss Mary Powell the Hesperians, and W. B. Allen the Concordias. They all had the reputation of being excellent elocutionists, and the contest promised to be an exciting one. Long before the hour announced for the exercises to take place the chapel was filled to overflowing. Mrs. Spiller, Mrs. T. P. Royal and Julius Stratton were elected judges, and the trial commenced. Mr. Wortman led off, followed in regular order by Mr. Allen and Misses Moores and Powell. The plan adopted to avoid confusion or partiality was to have both ladies recite the same poem and both gentlemen the same selection. That recited by the ladies was Edgar A. Poe's "Raven," and the gentlemen tried their elocutionary powers on a selection from Calvin B. McDonald's eulogy, pronounced on Abraham Lincoln before the Grant Club of Albany a number of years ago. Each contestant did nobly, and the judges consulted some little time before they agreed on the right parties. Miss Moores and Mr. Wortman were finally declared the winners, the announcement being the signal for loud and prolonged applause. They being the representatives of brother and sister societies, the Alkas and Athenæums feel justly proud of their success.

CLOSING EXERCISES—MEDICAL SCHOOL.

The medical department had full swing Tuesday evening, and again was the chapel filled to listen to the closing exercises. There were six graduates this year, and they, together with the faculty and invited guests, occupied the more prominent positions on the platform, and the meeting was presided over by the dean, Dr. H. Carpenter, of this city. After a short but fervent prayer by Rev. W. R. Stewart the class was addressed by Dr. F. R. Bayley, of the westside, who in as brief and comprehensive a manner as possible impressed upon their minds the magnitude of their profession, urging upon them a due appreciation of its responsibilities and the necessary study and experience required to enable them to be in every sense of the word successful surgeons and physicians. Drs. Carpenter and McAfee alike favored them with short addresses overflowing with practical suggestions and instructive passages. Prof. Crawford then conferred the degrees with becoming impressiveness, and the exercises closed with an excellent valedictory by Dr. J. W. Givens. We might mention in conclusion that the class and a number of invited guests then repaired to Holbert's ice cream parlors, where the inner man was regaled with all the delicacies of the season served in the most style known to [illegible] more enterprising of the class have hung their shingles out and are ready and anxious to cut and carve or dispense to ailing ones pills and potions, as the exigencies of the case require.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

The annual business meeting of the board of trustees and the Alumni association took place Wednesday afternoon. The election of officers in the latter resulting as follows: President, P. L. Willis; Vice Presidents, Emily J. York, Mrs. I. R. Grubbs, C. W. Kahler, Mrs. C. W. Parrish, Mrs. P. L. Willis, Susan Harrison, Mrs. Josie DeVore Johnson, Ellen J. Kelley, Mattie F. Scott, Hattie E. Gilliland, Mrs. Stillwell, Mrs. Dora P. Killingsworth, Alfred Nichols and Miss Lina Breyman; Secretary, Joseph Hannon; Treasurer, Marie E. Smith; Executive Committee, H. H. Gilfry and Clara J. Hall; Representative Trustee, Julius Stratton. On duty for 1876: Orator, H. H. Gilfry; Annalist, Syl. C. Simpson; Poet, Geo. E. Strong. For 1877: Orator, Stanley O. Royal; Essayist, Gertie E. Miller; Poet, Mrs. C. G. Curl; Annalist, Julius Stratton.

The Alumni Association held its annual exhibition and reunion on Wednesday evening, and its recurrence was, of course, a signal for renewed interest in the commencement exercises. Salem turned out en masse to welcome them. The Alumni, with a number of invited guests, occupied seats on the platform, T. H. Crawford, president of the association, presiding. As regarding numbers the Alumni was not very well represented this year, there being only about 30 members present, and the largest proportion of them residing in the city. Rev. J. W. Compton opened the exercises with prayer, after which an excellent choir sang "Let me Dream of Home, Sweet Home," Mrs. M. M. Miller presiding at the instrument. Then followed the introduction and welcome of the class of 1875, Hon. H. H. Gilfrey introducing them with a few well timed remarks, President Crawford responding on behalf of the association. Rev. J. R. W. Sellwood, of the class of 1866, then delivered the annual address, taking for his subject "Toil and its Reward." It was a rare production and listened to with interest throughout. Sam Simpson failed to come to time with his poem, to the sincere regret of every one present. Why this was thus deponent saith not, although its non-appearance was a bitter disappointment all around. Syl. C. Simpson presented the annals, putting on brakes very abruptly with the class of 69. They were splendid so far as they went, but it is to be hoped at the next reunion he will come prepared to follow them up to date. Miss Ellen J. Chamberlain's rendition of that sweet solo, "When the Flowing Tide Comes in," was simply superb, she having excellent control of a sweet voice. The evening exercises closed with the benediction by Rev. J. W. Sellwood.

Immediately after the close of the public exercises the Alumni with a few invited guests adjourned to the parlors of the Chemeketa hotel, where the reunion proper took place. Contrary to the usual custom refreshments were served in the parlor on this occasion, and the toasts were responded to with rather commendatory promptness. On being called to order the president called for reports from the various classes. Syl. C. Simpson responded for the class of 64; H. H. Gilfrey gave a very favorable report of the class of 66, and a letter from James Chambers was accepted on behalf of 68 and 69. The class of 1870 found an able representative in Tilmon Ford, who made one of his "way up" speeches, evidently prepared especially for the occasion. Prof. Powell delivered a feeling address in behalf of the faculty, which closed the speech making part of the programme. Social converse followed for an hour or more, and as the town clock tolled forth the hour of twelve the reunion became a separation and the participants went their various ways, revering more than ever their beloved alma mater.

GRADUATING EXERCISES.

Thursday dawned warm and pleasant, the weather being all the most exacting could wish. The afternoon was devoted to the literary exercises of the graduating class, and of course every available seat in the chapel was occupied, and before the exercises commenced standing room was decidedly above par. The platform, as usual, was crowded by the faculty, alumni, State officials, ministers of the Gospel, representatives of the press, the graduates of 1875 occupying prominent seats in front. President Gatch called the large assemblage to order promptly at 2 o'clock and introduced Rev. John Thompson, of Oakland, California, who invoked divine blessings on the exercises of the hour. Miss Teresa Holderness and Miss Mary Strong then favored the audience with a beautiful solo. The essays and addresses of the newly fledged graduates were then in order, and Miller G. Royal, of your city, stepped to the front and delivered a most excellent address on "The True Life." It was a fine effort, and of sufficient interest to command the attention of every one present. His elocutionary powers were strikingly portrayed and the offering throughout was a rare one in a literary point of view. Harrison J. Foster followed with a carefully prepared address on "Prince Bismarck," whose character and virtues received a glamour of romance from his hands, interwoven in such a manner as to make the effort an appreciative one on his part. His elocutionary abilities were hardly up to the standard. The address, however, was of sufficient interest to compensate for minor failings. After some instrumental music Mrs. Georgia A. Carpenter was introduced, and she at once became a center of attraction. She took for her subject "Weavers," and vividly she wove her thoughts together in a brilliant literary fabric, many of her ideas possessing that rare originality and conception of the beautiful that could not fail to interest and instruct. In addition Miss Carpenter is endowed with rare elocutionary powers, which in itself is all sufficient to entrance her hearers. Herself and friends may well feel proud of her success on that occasion. "Labor and Reward" was chosen as a proper subject for Wilbur F. Starr to handle, and he fully sustained his reputation as a deep thinker and careful searcher after facts. His address was admirably written and was creditable to himself and class. Miss Lizzie C. Jones then favored her hearers with an offering entitled "Pilgrim Fathers of the Pacific." It proved a handsome tribute to the pioneers of this coast and was nicely worded throughout. Her flights of fancy and rhetorical powers were vividly portrayed and her mode of delivery was pleasing in the extreme. The address has been published in full in the Daily Statesman, of this city. The subject selected by Asbury Starr as the base of his operations was [illegible] as it afterwards proved excellent. He depicted in glowing colors the wretchedness and misery of a man without a country. It afforded the speaker an opportunity of drawing from fact and fiction alike, and in commenting on the incident he aroused a slumbering reverence of the flag of our country in the hearts of every lover of his native soil within the sound of his voice. It was one of the best things on the programme. The benediction by Prof. Emory closed the ceremonies of the hour.

ADDRESS TO THE GRADUATES.

It having been announced that Rev. Bishop Peck, of the M. E. Church, would deliver the annual address Thursday evening, was inducement enough to draw out a large and intellectual audience. Evening Service, a chorus by Misses Althea and Bertha Moores, Ada May, Anna Lawrence, Ellen Chamberlin, Teresa Holderness and Messrs. Crawford and Royal, was nicely rendered, after which prayer was offered by Rev. P. M. Starr, which in turn was followed by a brilliant instrumental duet by Althea and Bertha Moores. Prof. Gatch then introduced Bishop Peck. He is of portly stature, and in form and features reminds one very forcibly of "Uncle Bob Kinney," now deceased, whose many virtues had endeared him to the hearts of all who knew him intimately or otherwise. The Bishop's subject was "The New Theology." We have neither space nor ability to bestow upon it the favorable notice it so justly deserves. Suffice it to say it was forcible, logical and conclusive, and gave almost universal satisfaction. At its close Prof. Gatch, in his usual impressive manner, [illegible] that of Bachelor of Science upon Misses Carpenter and Jory and Mr. Foster, and Bachelor of Arts upon Messrs. Royal and Wilbur and Asbury Starr. It having been so decreed by the board of trustees, Prof. Gatch conferred the degree of LL. D. upon Bishop Peck, and the commencement exercises of 1875 closed with the benediction pronounced by Rev. L. M. Nickerson.

THE ANNUAL REUNION.

Of the Alka and Athenæum societies took place immediately afterwards in their hall, which had been elaborately trimmed for the occasion. A large number of invited guests were present and enjoyment reigned supreme on every hand. The refreshments were choice and the participants jolly. Short speeches were in order, and wit and merriment prevailed. It was among the "wee sma' hours" when the joyous but somewhat wearied attendants wound their weary way home. It proved indeed a brilliant closing to an interesting week.

We cannot close these remarks without bestowing a few faint words of praise upon the chapel decorations, which were of unusual brilliancy. Never before have we seen the room so elaborately decorated or such exquisite taste displayed. Festoon after festoon of evergreens hung in graceful curves across and lengthways of the building, while the platform was literally covered with floral and evergreen offerings. Those same gloomy kerosene lamps still hang suspended from the walls and ceilings, which, when lighted, cast a ghastly, sickly glamour over all, reminding one of the days of tallow dips and tapers. We do hope that ere another year goes by, the trustees will get a fit of extravagance (?) on, and introduce gas or else about forty new and modern improved lamps.

BALL AND BAT.

Base ball circles are quieted down somewhat. The College club feels somewhat sore after their defeat at the hands of the "Aldines," but are by no means discouraged or demoralized. The Aldines are resting on their laurels until school opens in the fall, when they will be ready to accept challenges from outside clubs. The College club will also be on hand, chuck full of fight by that time, and will, we feel assured, redeem themselves before the season closes. A picked nine from the city, run by Rickey, of the College club, scooped a nine composed of students from the university, under Capt. Belt, on Wednesday last, to the tune of 42 to 30. Numerous small clubs are crossing the willow within the city limits, from time to time.

HERE AND THERE.

Just before closing we learn that the campmeeting at Dixie was very largely attended, there being between 3,000 and 4,000 people present. Several runaways occurred, some of which resulted quite seriously. One old gentleman named Humphries received injuries from which it is reported he has since died, although we would not vouch for its truth at the present time. A Salem rig, containing nine young men, capsized and injured eight of them more or less, a young man named Miller having his arm broken by the accident, and Prof. Nichols received a number of severe bruises about the head.

A five year old girl of Levi Manrey's escaped death very narrowly last evening by falling in a well. It [illegible] however to save its life by the free use of powerful restoratives, and it is now doing as well as could be expected.

Salem will not celebrate the coming anniversary of our national independence. Several of the small towns in the immediate vicinity will let the eagle scream, however.

The Lingards are billed here for Friday evening next, and as they have an excellent reputation we trust they may have a good house.

The Champions of the Red Cross "excursh" to Aurora on Thursday next, and hope to be accompanied by numerous friends, as they no doubt will be.

PROGRESS IN THE TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

The National Board of Trade, at its recent meeting at Philadelphia, probed the subject of railway transportation to its very core, when it had under consideration and discussion the cause of the high tariffs for freight and fare. The problem that so puzzled the Connecticut Legislature a year ago, and which has not been approached by any other legislative body, so far as we have seen, was met by the keen sighted, clear headed men composing the Board, with a directness and manliness that should shame out of countenance the politicians who have been so long promising and pretending efforts to find out a solution. The National Board of Trade said, in a resolution that had no diplomatic indirection in it, that the trouble lies at the foundation of railway property; that railway corporations issue stock more than enough, if it were paid up, to build their roads, and then, without assessing anything against the stock, proceed to borrow on the bonds, secured by mortgage on the prospective road and its franchises, money to build the road with; and then, when they come to estimate the cost of the road, as a basis of their tariff rates, they add the whole amount of stock which cost nothing and represents nothing, to the whole amount of bonds which represent the actual cost of the road and of placing the bonds themselves; and upon this double capital, more than half of it bogus, the road must be made to pay what is interest on the bonds and dividends on the stock. This, the Board declare, in substance, is a fraud upon the public, a burden upon all productive labor, and an intolerable oppression of the working classes, and should be at once and effectually stopped by appropriate legislation.

And by what particular kind of legislation? The Board does not leave the question unanswered. By such restriction upon the right of the company to establish its own rates of freight and fare, as will limit the net income from the roads to a reasonable profit upon the actual and legitimate cost of their construction. This view, though not new to readers of this paper, is new in the records of the public bodies that have attempted an analysis of the question of inland transportation. They have come to the true ground slowly, but they have come to it, and that is encouraging. The sophistries with which the whole subject has been befogged by the corporations, through their ability to employ the best talent and ingenuity at the bar and in the legislative halls, are being cleared away at last. The right of the State to regulate fare and freight charges, which a little while ago was stoutly denied by most people, and but timidly asserted by nearly all the rest, is now so well settled that but few have the hardihood to question it. The next step was to ascertain the true basis upon which such regulation should be made, in order to do no wrong either to the public or to the railway companies, and that has been done now by the National Board of Trade, in a manner that can hardly fail to be accepted generally as conclusive. The only remaining work, to make the solution perfect in practice, as it is in theory, is the detail work of making out suitable schedules. Many persons who have come to comprehend all the rest shrink from this as too difficult and delicate a matter to be taken hold of. Difficult and delicate it may be—it is. But that is no reason why it can not be comprehended and settled. The railway managers do not shrink from it. They do not pretend to be unable themselves to adjust their tariffs, down to cents and fractions of cents on the different classes of transportation. If the subject is not too complicated for them to handle it with safety, why can not other intelligent men,—railway commissioners, or legislative committees,—handle it also? If, in the light of past experience, a board of railway directors can so adjust their tariffs as to make the business of the road produce a net income of just about seven per cent. on the aggregate of its real and fictitious capital, why can not an equally intelligent body of men who are not railway directors, by informing themselves thoroughly in all the necessary data, so adjust the tariff as to make the income just about seven per cent.—or any other given per cent.—on the real value alone? They can do it, and they will do it. All that is wanted is that it shall be taken hold of with the same confidence, the same unwavering purpose, the same careful attention to details, that men give to their personal affairs.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT.

If the people of Oregon wear out 200,000 pounds of wool per year in clothing, blankets, &c.—which is a small allowance—it costs them every cent of the proceeds of the 2,000,000 pounds of wool produced in the State—which is a large allowance—to pay for the manufacturing of the 200,000 pounds into clothing. If any one doubts that, let him make a calculation for himself. Let him take from the cost price of his coat, pantaloons, flannels, and so forth, the market value of the amount of wool in them, and see what proportion of the cost goes to the manufacturer. The result may astonish him, but he cannot get away from it.

Suppose the circumstances were reversed. Suppose instead of shipping away 2,000,000 pounds of wool to pay for 200,000 pounds of goods, we manufactured the entire 2,000,000 pounds into goods and sent abroad for sale all above the 200,000 pounds needed for home use, what a saving there would be! But the saving is not all taken into consideration until we add the per cent. which would arise from the addition to our population of the people who must be engaged in the manufacture of these goods, and the advance in the value of real property consequent upon such an increase of the amount of money kept in circulation among us.

As an exchange truthfully remarks, the quiet and dignified manner in which the women elected to the Boston School Board have taken their places and gone to work, fully justifies the Advance in saying that the sooner all our cities and towns summon sensible women to the councils of their school committees, the better. Mother instinct and experience are needed not only in the elections of the teachers, nine-tenths of whom are women, but in a multitude of the details of school management.

The public are at last to have an opportunity to judge for themselves as to the merits of the Dolph-Watkinds libel case, about which so much has been said through the press. We give this morning a report of the trial so far as it has progressed. We did not expect to see very much blood spilt when the fight between these two heroes was raging so furiously at Salem, and we shall be disappointed if any very valuable reputations are wrecked in the judicial investigation.

CITY.

Caterpillars.—Once again have these voracious foliage-devouring pests put in an unwelcome appearance In many portions of the city the sidewalks fairly swarm with the noiseless trackless marauders and pedestrians blessed with broad and comprehensive understandings make things quite lively for the pesky leaf eating thieves Many a luckless and disgusting caterpillar corse can be seen stretched along on the sidewalk crushed and mangled beneath the ponderous heel of some heartless wanderer We read some times of kind hearted individuals who scorn to tread on an innocent bug or who will turn aside to avoid crushing a harmless worm Charity thus exercised in behalf of the festive caterpillar would seem, from a business, practical point of view, to be marvelously like wasting sweetness on the desert air So far as our limited observations have extended our pedestrianating public have not squandered a vast amount of fragrant aroma in the direction aforesaid. Only the most timid ladies decline to brush over the plunderers Of course caterpillars have eyes, and the seemingly overweening modesty of the ladies is pardonable Between the "early bird" the sportive and jubilant hoodlum, and the abstracted man of the world the caterpillars have a hard row to hoe To escape one is only to fall a victim to the other destroyer But, notwithstanding these trivial drawbacks, the pests contrive to live, move and enjoy good appetites. Several orchards about the city have been completely overrun and fallen a prey to the voracious marauders At the corner of C and First streets a small orchard has been a central point of attack, and now scarcely a single green leaf remains to tell the story The ravages of these insatiable pests have been principally confined to the city, so far as we have learned, and, for the prospects of the fruit crop through the State, it is to be hoped that they will not see proper to extend their field of labor abroad.

Injuring Ornamental Trees.—Drivers of hacks, carriages and other vehicles are sometimes guilty of a very censurable habit and that is of tying their horses to the shade trees which line the outer edge of the sidewalks Not infrequently we witness the unfortunate results of such carelessness in the great injury of the trees At the corner of Morrison and Fourth streets, yesterday, we observed a very handsome locust tree very badly girdled by some voracious horse that had been left standing near the walk, and which was anxious to try the keen edge of his teeth As a natural consequence, the bark had been stripped off from the trunk of the tree, and its death is almost an assured fact. It is a great pity and crying shame that the beautiful ornamental trees planted years ago, and guarded and nursed by the city with such zealous care, should be suffered to be disfigured or destroyed through culpable negligence No horses should be allowed to stand near the shade trees

Additional Subscriptions Received for State Board of Immigration.—The secretary has much pleasure in acknowledging the following additional subscriptions paid to him on Saturday to carry out the purposes and objects of the State Board of Immigration Dekum & Bickel $20, Oregon Furniture Manufacturing Co, $15, Millard & VanSchuyver, $10 Fleischner, Mayer & Co, $10 J Kramer & Co, $10, F. ### AMUSEMENTS.

Augustine Daly's beautiful four act play of "Alixe," was offered last evening at New Market Theater, for the first time in this city The cast included the full strength of the company An attempt to give even an imperfect outline of the very fascinating and brilliant play of 'Alixe,' at this late hour is impracticable but we will content ourselves with saying that it is one of the most attractive which has ever been placed on the boards in Portland. In point of startling situations intense dramatic effect, and dialogue, 'Alixe' is superior even to "La Tentation," which is saying much Miss Dunning as "Alixe,' did some remarkably fine and effective emotional acting and was honored with a call before the curtain, and was the recipient of rare floral offerings. As "Lucienne," Miss Dickie fairly eclipsed preceding efforts before this public, which by the way is paying that handsome little lady as high a compliment as we have at hand. Wm Horace, as Duke de Mirandal, was as easy, polished and telling in his impersonation as the most fastidious could desire Mr Barrows as 'Henri de Kerdran,' deserves special mention for the handsome manner in which he acquitted himself. He is a young actor of much promise Mrs. Phelps as "Madame Valory' acted with becoming grace and force and won hearty plaudits Miss Lizzie Morgan assumed the role of 'Marquise de Cesaranne E J Crowell the husband, (wedded and happy) and Mr R [illegible] Count de Somerive' This evening "Alixe will be repeated No one should fail to see the play The opportunity of witnessing such a piece, superbly mounted and excellently rendered will not likely occur soon again

THE LIBEL SUIT.

DOLPH VS. WATKINDS.

The libel suit brought at the instance of J N Dolph, of this city against Wm H Watkinds superintendent of the Oregon penitentiary arising out of published statements by the latter concerning Mr Dolph in his capacity as a State senator and as chairman of a legislative committee, came up for trial yesterday before Judge Shattuck and a jury in the State circuit court There was a large attendance of the friends of both parties to the suit who watched the proceedings with considerable interest Senator J H Mitchell whose name was introduced somewhat prominently in the testimony was present nearly all day Messrs L B Bronaugh Richard Williams and W W Thayer appeared for the plaintiff and E W Cronin and W H Effinger for the defendant

Some little difficulty was experienced in securing a jury One or two jurors were objected to by the defendant's counsel on the ground that they either were or had been clients of the plaintiff and one was challenged by them as having had some conversation with outsiders relative to the case and was excused by the court for cause to which ruling the plaintiffs entered an exception But few of the gentlemen called admitted any long acquaintance with the defendant, and most who did were as a rule excused After about an hour's time the twelve chairs were filled by the following parties who were duly sworn R Kin[illegible], John Curley H Bories Geo Abbott J F Stimson H M Swafford R F Starr P G Combs R Hendrie Isaac Levy Wm Frazier and L Quivey

Opening the Case.

Mr Bronaugh opened the case for the plaintiff. He stated that the action was brought on account of published slanders The plaintiff had been a member of the last State legislature and was one of a committee appointed by the legislature to investigate the affairs of the penitentiary of which institution defendant is superintendent The report of this committee had been published in pamphlet form by the defendant and appended to that report was a card by the defendant charging the plaintiff J N Dolph a member of the firm of Mitchell & Dolph with having received from Hawley Dodd & Co a bribe or remuneration for the purpose of lobbying through the legislature certain claims against the State and stating that when this bribe was received by said firm Mr Dolph was a member of the legislature and voted in favor of the allowance of such claim

Afterwards, counsel proceeded Mr Watkinds published in the Oregonian a still more bitter card in which he charged Mr Dolph and Mr. T McF Patton members of the penitentiary investigation committee with being guilty of perjury repeated the allegation that Mr Dolph had accepted a bribe while a State senator to lobby through the legislature certain claims against the State and wound up by charging Mr Dolph with being a sanctimonious scoundrel and villain Recognizing the obligation that rested upon him as a member of society and a member of the State senate to keep the peace Mr Dolph now sought redress for such charges at the hands of twelve of his countrymen The damages were laid at $10 000—$5 000 for the card appended to the pamphlet and $5 000 for the card published in the Oregonian

Statement of the Defense.

Mr Cronin made answer for the defendant He stated that Mr Dolph in addition to being a well known lawyer was somewhat of a politician and, perhaps aspired to be the leader of his party in this State He was appointed chairman of the penitentiary committee appointed by the last legislature to investigate the accounts of the penitentiary Mr Dolph as chairman had a right to summon witnesses and employ clerks It was complained by Mr Watkinds that the very first move made by Mr Dolph was to employ as clerk to this committee Mr Patton, a sworn enemy of Watkinds——

Mr Williams objected to this remark as being foreign to the issue The issue was whether the firm of Mitchell & Dolph was bribed by Hawley Dodd & Co

Mr Cronin replied that it was not alleged that Hawley Dodd & Co bribed Mr Dolph The appointment of Mr Patton was claimed by Mr Watkinds as an unfair proceeding toward him and as a conspiracy between Dolph and Patton to ruin him as an officer of the penitentiary He denied that the defendant had published the pamphlet in question That pamphlet was a State document published by order of the legislature and circulated under the authority of the secretary of state The claims which Hawley Dodd & Co were interested in having lobbied through the legislature amounted to $50 000 but supposing it was true that Mr Dolph had been one of the attorneys of Hawley Dodd & Co, and supposing also that he had worked for the passage of such claims and such claims were just wherein was Mr Dolph injured As to the card published in the Oregonian he submitted that card in its entirety bore a very different complexion from what it did as drafted in the statement of the plaintiff He failed to see where Mr Dolph was injured in any way by anything Mr Watkinds had published Something was also said in the card about Mr Mitchell but Mr Mitchell did not consider that his character was injured thereby Something was also said about Mr Patton and he knew better than to bring any action In behalf the defendant he had to say that he did not deny anything, that he did not take back anything The defendant claimed that the plaintiff had been interested in making out a report which did him injustice, that the committee never saw the books for the purpose of making out a proper report and it would be proved by three or four witnesses that Mr Dolph acknowledged that he was the attorney for Hawley Dodd & Co, and had frequent conversations with Mr Watkinds in reference to the claim of Hawley Dodd & Co against the State

The Evidence.

C D BELLINGER

Was the first witness called He was examined as to the circulation of the Oregonian and said he could only give his judgment as to that circulation based upon rumor

Q—State what you know yourself in regard to its circulation through the country and having met it through the country A—Well I have met with it generally through the country

Q—All over the State? A—Yes sir

Q—How is it through the city? A—The same thing I could say in regard to the city

Q—What was the fact in regard to its circulation last November A—I do not know that I met the paper outside the State in that month It is a matter of opinion with me I think the Oregonian is a paper of general circulation throughout the State and it was so at that time

Q—Where has it a more general circulation in the city or outside? A—I should have to answer that question as I have the others and say that in my judgment the Daily Oregonian has more circulation in the city and the Weekly in the country

Witness then went on to testify that he had known Mr Dolph as an attorney since 1868 He was asked as to the extent of Mr Dolph's business but the question was objected to and disallowed—as was a question in cross examination as to whether he knew that Mr Dolph was a politician as well as an attorney

Mr Thayer then offered in evidence the following extracts from the card of Mr Watkinds in the Oregonian dated November [illegible] 1874

I desire to say through your columns that I am preparing an answer to the report of Dolph and Patton on the investigation of the penitentiary affairs and hope the press will withhold further comment upon the prison affairs until I can show up in its true light the perjury of these two men

* * * * * * *

The whole report is a tissue of falsehoods garbled evidence erroneously drawn conclusions and mendacity and before this question is settled I will show that my charge against Mr Dolph that the law firm of Messrs Mitchell Dolph & Co were employed to help lobby through certain claims against the State, as appears on the books in my office while some of the members of said firm were members of the legislature and did vote and sustain the payment of said claims above referred to is true and I will show Patton to be just the man he is shown to be in that printed report And also I will show these two sanctimonious scoundrels to be a pair of villains.

JOHN M GEARIN

Testified that he was a member of the House of Representatives of the last Oregon legislature elected from Multnomah county He was also a member of the committee referred to in the pleadings in this case

Q—State whether you were present at any interview between Mr Dolph and Mr Watkinds prior to the publication of this report and whether you heard anything of a threatening character said by Watkinds to Dolph during that interview A—Yes I heard a conversation between Dolph and Watkinds on the last day the committee sat I heard a great many conversations between them

Q—The last conversation is what we want when this threatening language was used A—Yes I heard that.

Q—Well what was it? A—Well, Mr Dolph objected to Mr Watkinds reading some testimony he brought in and they both got very much excited Watkinds stated that if he could not offer it there before the committee he would go to the House with it or to that body that created us I think that is what he said and as he was going out he turned back and said "Dolph I will warm you for this" Mr Dolph made some reply told him I think to keep the truth on his side if he did so

Q—(By Mr Effinger) Can you say what was the manner of the parties? A—They were excited Watkinds was excited on account of his testimony being rejected and Mr Dolph was excited also

Q—How many of the committee were in session A—Mr Dolph Mr Chambers and myself I think Mr Clark the other member of the committee was that morning in the Senate

Q—When Mr Watkinds came in was not he standing up and did not Dolph order him peremptorily to sit down? A—I think not I think Watkinds was sitting down when he commenced to read but he may have been standing up I think Dolph told Watkinds he was at liberty to offer his testimony and he started in to read it There appeared to be a good deal of it Did not recollect whether anything was said by Watkinds at the time about having offered the testimony the night previous to Mr Dolph for his private examination Witness took the paper from Mr Watkinds looked it over and told him it was not admissible Mr Dolph also objected to it, which made a majority

Q—But there was no vote A—None other than that

Q—As Watkinds was going out of the committee room did not Mr Dolph say to Mr Watkinds that if he would leave that testimony out he (Watkinds) should be satisfied with his (Dolph's) report A—No sir

Q—Do you recollect whether Dolph made any response to Watkinds as he went out of the room? A—He told him after he made that remark about warming him that he had better keep truth on his side something like that

Q—Was that the only remark you heard from Dolph at that time? A—He told him that if he would leave the first of the testimony out he could introduce the last of it.

By Mr Bronaugh—That was not at the last part of the conversation but at the first? A—I do not think the testimony was separated I think Watkinds took it all away

A J MARSHALL

Deputy Clerk for Multnomah County testified to hearing an altercation between Mr Dolph and Mr Watkinds at Salem in the Legislative buildings during the last session of the Legislature some warm words passed between the two

Q—State what these words were? A—Mr Dolph and M V Brown I think it was were talking over some papers that Brown had in his hand Watkinds came in and said something to Brown I do not know what Dolph said something then to Watkinds and I did not hear that and Watkinds replied to Dolph and Dolph to him backwards and forwards two or three times I did not pay much attention to what was said till they began to use threatening language Watkinds said something like this "I will either warm you or Make it warm for you" I stepped between the two and said "Men stop this This is no place for an altercation of this kind" That was all the threatening language I think Dolph had turned to go back into the Senate chamber when Watkinds talked about warming him The altercation took place in the Secretary of State's room towards the close of the session When Watkinds came in he was in a hurry as though he was looking for some person

Cross-examined—Did not know what Watkinds said to Mr Brown thought Watkinds spoke to Dolph first Dolph took a step forwards to Watkinds when the latter said he would warm him

Q—Did you hear what Dolph said in reply to Watkinds remark about warming him A—Mr Dolph I think said "Mr Watkinds I am a Senator here and I have a right to say this" whatever it was he had said

Q—Do you know whether either of the parties at any time during that conversation had these papers that were held by Mr Brown in their hand A—I think not I think Brown went away with the papers

Q—Did either one of them make an attempt to get possession of those papers A—That I am not positive of I think when they turned to one another they lost sight altogether of Brown and his papers

Q—Did you hear Watkinds say anything like this "You cannot take these papers Mr Dolph" A—I have no recollection of hearing anything of that kind

J R MOORES

Land Commissioner for the O & C R R Co was next sworn and testified to being acquainted with the parties to the suit.

Q—State whether you had any conversation with Watkinds or heard him in any conversation in regard to the subject matter of this suit and expressing his feeling towards Dolph and if so what he stated and when and where it occurred A—The only time Watkinds and myself had any conversation in reference to it was on the evening after the papers were served on him in town We were on the ferry boat crossing over to the cars He showed me the papers in connection with the suit.

Q—State what he said if anything in regard to his feelings towards Mr Dolph at that time A—There was a considerable amount of talk between us and others—a kind of free and easy discussion or conversation Watkinds appeared to regard the matter as a joke more than anything else but I recollect distinctly that he said he would make it d—d hot for Dolph if he was disposed to push it

Q—Did he say anything about the charges he brought whether they were true or not? A—I cannot recollect the language he used but my impression is he said he could prove the charges he made and a d—d sight more something of that kind

Q—State what he said if you recollect aside that A—I recollect one remark particularly which struck me as being rather amusing—I do not know how it struck anybody else He said he could prove that within the last few weeks or a short time Mr Dolph had been drunk in a whorehouse in town raising hell I recollect that very distinctly because I heard him repeat it twice in the presence of the Conductor and I think McCoy was also present but I am not certain

Mr Cronin moved to strike out the last answer but the motion was overruled

Mr Effinger—Q—You say he was in a laughing mood A—That was when he commenced

Q—Did his manner change? A—Yes he appeared to be considerably in earnest about it

Q—Did not he in that conversation complain of being very much aggrieved by Mr Dolph in that report he issued as chairman of the committee? A—I cannot remember whether he did or not.

Q—Did not Mr Watkinds at that time and place when he became serious, state as a ground of grievance against Mr Dolph that he (Dolph) had suppressed testimony he (Watkinds) desired to offer relative to the subject matter of the inquiry before the penitentiary investigating committee? A—I do not think there was any general discussion of the matter There was still talk between the parties before as I have understood

Q—On both sides? A—I understood so

Q—Did not Watkinds say he had offered testimony to explain away the charges Dolph had made against him in his report? A—We were not talking very long on that subject We were joking him considerably on the train going up We had considerable fun among ourselves but whether or not he spoke about any particular grievance I could not state

Q—Did what you have testified to occur in one conversation? A—He showed the papers to me first on the ferry There was no person present at that time He then made the remark I repeated and he repeated it again on the other side of the river while we were waiting for the cars

Q—Did not Watkinds say in that conversation that he had been informed by a responsible party that the charge he made that the firm of Mitchell & Dolph were employed by Hawley, Dodd & Co to get their claim through the legislature? A—That particular branch of the controversy was not discussed at all He probably assumed I had heard that branch of the discussion before

Q—What are your relations with the plaintiff? A—Very pleasant

Q—What service are you in? A—Land commissioner of the O & C R R Co

Q—Who is the attorney for that company A—Mr Dolph

Mr Bronaugh—The whole firm

J R CONOLE

Spoke to an interview he had had with Mr Watkinds on the train on the afternoon the papers were served on him, Mr Watkinds spoke of this complaint and said he had said nothing there but he could prove that what he said were the facts

J N DOLPH,

The plaintiff next took the stand and was examined by Mr Bronaugh

Q—State to the court and jury whether you had any conversation with Mr Watkinds and what that conversation was at the time Mr Gearin spoke of? A—I had some conversation with Mr Watkinds It was the morning after the testimony had been closed before the committee and the committee were ready to report and did report that morning Mr Watkinds brought a paper—an ex parte statement—and offered to file it with the papers I cannot state whether he undertook to read it or not and I cannot state what member of the committee made the first objection, my impression would be that the committee was full the paper was examined by the committee and I as chairman announced the decision the committee arrived at and told him I considered the first part of his statement entirely irrelevant and declined it could not be admitted but he could divide it and put in the balance which he did As he started to go out he said as I recollect the conversation "I will go after you" I said, "You go after me You keep by the truth on your side or you will find out you have waked up the wrong person"

Q—State what you recollect of the conversation that took place when Mr Marshall was present? A—I had spoken to Mr Brown who was coming out of the house with a bundle of papers in his hand and while talking to Mr Brown Mr Watkinds came rushing in very excited and said—I suppose he addressed his conversation to Mr Brown—"Now, I don't want to be interfered with in this matter I have had interference enough" Mr Brown who had the papers in his hand sort of rolled them up and started as if he had been afraid of Mr Watkinds Mr Brown started out of one door and I started to go back to the house Mr Watkinds turned to me and said "I will warm you" and of course he started me a little I took a step or two forward and said "You talk of warming me—a senator in the discharge of my duties" He started back put his hand behind him and said "Take your hand out of your pocket" My hand was not in my pocket at all Then Mr Marshall stepped in between us and I went into the senate chamber

Q—Was that all the conversation? A—I had some conversation with Mr Brown but whether it was after Watkinds came in or not I cannot tell I told Mr Brown that this statement of Mr Watkinds was not part of the evidence in the case, or of the report of the committee

Q—Was you talking in regard to this card appended to the printed report? (Witness was shown the card in the printed report) A—It was in regard to that My impression is that that card contained other matter and was different from what is printed

Q—Is it your impression that it then contained the matter which it does now A—It contained that matter substantially at least

Cross examined by Mr Effinger—Q—Did you take any papers out of Mr Brown's hands? A—I do not think I did entirely I think he had them and I turned up the end of the package and examined this paper or statement which came first

Q—Don't you know that Mr Watkinds had that paper attached to other papers for the purpose of publication I do not.

Q—What paper or papers did you refer to when you made that remark to Mr Brown A—I referred to the paper containing the charges against myself that in substance at least are contained in the card shown me now by his counsel

Q—Did you read these papers introduced by Mr Watkinds to the committee A—I either read them or heard them read

Q—Did Mr Watkinds submit them to you the night before? A—He did not, I had never seen them until that hour

Q—Did not Mr Watkinds undertake to read his testimony to the committee and did not you as chairman tell him to sit down or you would compel him to sit down? A—I do not think so I have no recollection of any such transaction I could not state whether he read it or some member of the committee

Q—Did you ask Mr Watkinds to read it that morning? A—I have no recollection of it

By a Juror—Q—Was the committee in session when Mr Watkinds came in that morning? A—It was

Mr Effinger—Q—I will ask you whether you did not say to Mr Watkinds that if he would leave out that part of the paper referring to you he would have no objection to the report you would submit A—There was nothing in this statement that referred to me

Q—I will ask you whether he had not this identical statement that has been identified as having been in the possession of Mr Brown? A—He had not

Q—Did not he have before the committee that morning this identical statement except that there were other names beside the name of the law firm of Mitchell Dolph & Co in the statement? A—He did not have anything of the kind or anything more than has been referred to already as having been excluded

Q—You have stated upon your direct examination that Mr Watkinds put his hand behind him in that interview in the Secretary of State's office Was that the next morning after this committee meeting A—I think it was probably the same afternoon—about 2 o clock in the afternoon of the same day

Q—Did Mr Watkinds say anything to you until you had taken or attempted to take papers out of the hands of Mr Brown? A—I did not attempt to take the papers Everything between Mr Brown and myself was perfectly friendly

Q—What was the first remark Mr Watkinds made? A—Mr Watkinds rushed in and as I supposed directed his conversation mainly to Mr Brown saying "Now I don't want to be interfered with in this matter I have been interfered with enough"

Q—Right there didn't he say you should not take these papers? A—No sir I recollect no such talk

Q—Do you recollect his direct language then and there? A—I think I do very distinctly It made a great impression on my mind

Q—What did he say to you when you stepped towards him A—He did "Take your hands out of your pockets take your hands out of your pockets"—repeated it twice

Q—Did you take your hands out of your pockets A—I did not have them in

Q—Where were your hands A—At my side not in my pockets at least.

Q—What reply did you make to him when he told you to take your hands out of your pockets? A—I did not answer him Mr Marshall stepped in between

Q—Were you not moving towards him when he put his hand behind him A—I stepped towards him

Q—Why did you step towards him? A—It is difficult to tell He talked about warming me and I was rather startled by what he said

Q—Did not Mr Watkinds say to Mr Brown during that interview "You will be responsible for these papers Dolph shall not take them away from you" A—I think not sir, I have no recollection of that conversation.

Counsel for the plaintiff here rested the case and Mr Effinger

MOVED FOR A NONSUIT

Contending that no charge alleging bribery or perjury had been proved After a long argument

THE COURT OVERRULED THE MOTION

He held that the words imputing the acceptance of pay by the plaintiff as a member of the Legislature to do certain lobbying were actionable per se With regard to the allegation of perjury there might be some doubt but he would prefer to leave it to the jury

WM H WATKINDS

The defendant was then called to the stand and was examined by Mr Cronin He stated that he was superintendent of the Oregon penitentiary and had been so about five years was acquainted with the plaintiff and had known him about eight or ten years Was acquainted with J H Mitchell and had known him for about the same period Was acquainted with the firm of Hawley Dodd & Co By virtue of his office witness was chairman of the penitentiary building committee

Q—State whether or not you have any knowledge of Hawley Dodd & Co having a claim against the State of Oregon for materials furnished and work done in constructing the Oregon penitentiary? A—Hawley Dodd & Co had a claim against the State of Oregon for material furnished the penitentiary of between $[illegible] 000 and $[illegible] 000 interest and all I think when it was settled it was $[illegible] 000

Q—State whether or not you have had any conversation with the plaintiff concerning this claim of Hawley Dodd & Co of which you have spoken? A—I have had a great many conversations with him in regard to it

Q—State when the first conversation was and what was said between you at the time? A—The first conversation I had with him on the subject was while the senate was balloting for clerk of the legislature in 1872. He came to me in a small room between the senate chamber and the house of representatives The president of the senate—Mr Fay—had just been elected and he asked me if I was sure that I could control Mr Fay in the appointment of the committee on public buildings I told him what Fay said to me I vouched for Fay I told him Fay would appoint the men selected by Dolph for the purpose and we talked over matters—about how this man stood and that man stood—senators and whether I could control the Democratic senators or not I assured him that I could I think the next conversation we had was in front of my store I was at the same time in the mercantile business, and in the front part of the store I had an office He came along after supper and he asked me how the committee on public buildings was getting along That committee met over my store It was taken there for a purpose. I told him I did not know I guessed they were all right He asked if I had been before that committee I told him I had not. We talked there a few minutes about the committee and how that committee would be He asked me if I was sure if the books and vouchers agreed—that is books of building committee and my vouchers I told him they were all right that I had confidence in my clerk that he assured me everything was all right and that I knew it was for I had looked over them The next conversation I had with Mr Dolph was in the senate chamber back of the bar I believe senate had adjourned for dinner The house had just passed a resolution enlarging the committee on public buildings Mr Patton moved for an enlargement of that committee of two from each house and I went to Dolph and told him what Patton had done, and that that was evidently to make trouble with our committee He said to me "Telegraph for Dodd" Dodd was at that time in Portland I immediately informed my clerk, who was with me, to send a telegram to him at once In that talk Dolph told me Patton's resolution should never pass the Senate and Dolph voted against the resolution and defeated it in the Senate

Q—Just speak of the conversation between you and Mr Dolph A—That was all the conversation we had at that time on the subject. The next conversation I remember having with Mr Dolph was sometime in October—somewhere between the 12th and 20th He came into my office on Commercial street. I was sitting there talking at the time, Dolph came in and said he wanted to talk to me He talked about these claims I had kept back all I could about the claims I did not tell any more than I was forced to He said "The appropriation bill will come up in a few days in the senate—may be to morrow and I want you to be on hand" He asked me "How about Fay?" I told him Fay would vote against that claim provided it did not take his vote to carry it I told him what Fay had said—that he would go against it that he believed two thirds of the Legislature had been bought up by Dodd Fay said he had not got any of the chicken pie, and "I don't want the people to say I have been bought on this claim but if it needs my vote and you say the claim is just, I will support it but it must need my vote to carry it." I told this to Dolph and he said "I am told there are some of the vouchers before that committee that you have not signed" Well I kind of laughed and, says I "There are some of those vouchers I never will sign" I told him they were dishonest that the materials they claimed had been bought had never been bought and that the vouchers were a fraud He referred to something about a San Francisco voucher I said I did not know such a man as Julius something—Julius Caesar or something like that He then said some of Hawley Dodd & Co's were not signed I said "That is true, and I never will sign them" He wanted to know why I told him there were things about it I did not want to talk about that I was very much afraid of politicians we were always trying to catch one another and that I was a good deal on the catch myself but I never got into a man's trap He then said to me "Bill do you mean to fix me? Mitchell & Dolph are the attorneys in this case We mean to try and get Judge Bonham to compel Chadwick to issue warrants over and above the appropriation and you need have no fear of what you say to me" He made use I think of this word "Business is business and politics is politics" He then said to me "I am told that you are interested in these claims" I told him it was not true, that all the interest I had in these claims was to assist Dodd in getting his pay that I thought he had done what no other man in Oregon would have done, that he had trusted the State to the extent of $40 000 or $50 000 when there was not a law authorizing an appropriation for the amount and that I felt honorably bound to assist him in getting his pay Beyond that I did not have a dollar in it I said, "We will go to Dodd about it and if Dodd says I am interested in them he tells you a falsehood" He then called my attention to the men sitting at the desk—the men I had been speaking to when he came in I said they were my friends, and he need not fear them, but that we could go out into the street He said, "We had better not do that we had better not be seen too much together" When he said he was the attorney of Hawley Dodd & Co he qualified it by saying "I am employed as other attorneys if the claims are just I assist to get them through" He said to me "I am working for my money" I told him that I believed the claim was a just one that they had furnished all the materials they charged for but that some of them were put down at exorbitant prices He said "You would not like them to furnish material to the State and stand so long out of their money, there being no appropriation to meet the claims without getting a profit" The next conversation we had was in the Senate chamber when the senate was in committee of the whole on the general appropriation bill He came and asked me to get the claim and interest of Hawley Dodd & Co—the entire amount "You go to Dodd and get the entire amount with the interest figured up and I will get the interest on that voucher You see vouchers draw interest but warrants don't" The committee was then in session I stood back of the railing in the senate chamber and was posting Mr Dolph when Dodd came and handed me a slip of paper with the amount principal and interest I handed that to Dolph Just as I handed it to him this part of the appropriation was read in committee of the whole Dolph moved that interest be added under the head of so many thousand dollars in the claim of Hawley Dodd & Co for certain purposes and that the word interest be inserted I believe that is all the conversation I had with him save at the close of the legislature when he came to me to watch the appropriation bill that it was liable to be interfered with I told him I would attend to that

Q—At the time you and the conversation you have referred to as occurring in your office was anybody else present and if so who were they? A—Our foreman Rowland was in the back shop thirty or forty feet from where we had the conversation There were two or three men sitting at the desk when we came in

Q—Who were they? A—I do not know but two—a young man by the name of Noble and Sam Driver

Q—Have you related now about all the conversation you had with Mr Dolph in reference to this matter? A—I could not tell all the conversation I had with Mr Dolph

Q—State if you know whether Mitchell & Dolph were partners at that time and were so reputed A—I know nothing about it only what I saw by advertisement and what I would know about men being partners as lawyers

Q—At the time you had this conversation with Mr Dolph in the store was that before or after the appropriation bill passed? A—That was before

Q—Did you have any conversation with him after it passed? A—I had a conversation with him after the bill went through both houses Somebody stole the bill and cut out some of it—the pay of the judiciary Somebody cut out a lot of it in order to defeat its passage It had been changed in the house and Dolph came to me and asked me to look out for it and while we were talking about it Dodd came along and went and bought it—bought it from the clerk paid the clerk $50 to get it out of his hands

The Court—Please confine yourself to the conversation

Witness—It is pretty hard for me to keep to just what is wanted I am not a lawyer and any errors I make is through ignorance

Mr Bronaugh—Oh we all know your ignorance

Mr Cronin—Q—State whether you had any conversation with Mr Mitchell in regard to these claims A—I had four or five

Q—State when and where the first conversation occurred? A—I had a conversation with Mr Mitchell sometime between the 1st and the 15th of June 1872 in Salem I think it was in my store or in front of the office

Q—What was that conversation? A—He came there and spoke to me about this claim of Hawley Dodd & Co He asked me I think "Is that claim all right" I told him it was He then told me that Dodd had employed him to argue a mandamus before Judge Bonham to make Chadwick show cause why he would not issue warrants We talked considerably about the claim He wanted to know if I could not see Chadwick and get him to issue warrants for these vouchers He said he understood that we were all interested in these claims and wanted me to see Chadwick about them "Cannot you do something with Chadwick and get him to issue warrants" and he then told us that Sam May the old secretary of state had issued warrants on claims when there was no appropriation He believed the secretary of state had the right to do it and he wanted to know if I would not see Chadwick on the subject I told him I would In that conversation Mitchell said something about money—said that Dodd had better spend $5 000 or $6 000 to get it through than take it before the legislature The legislature had been elected and we talked about the different committees and how the thing would probably go I told them to go and see Chadwick himself In this conversation he spoke about these same vouchers He said he had been told I had not signed these vouchers I told him I had not He spoke to me about signing them and I told him I would sign them with this understanding that Hawley who was in Salem at the time should go before witnesses and state that the firm of W H Watkinds & Co and the penitentiary building commissioners were in no wise interested in the payment of these claims directly or indirectly He went off and either that night or the next I signed the vouchers At this time they were signed by the other two commissioners Mitchell told me why he was so anxious to get the thing through—that as I very well knew he was a candidate for the senate and he did not want this claim to bother him He went off and the next day I think it was—probably in the afternoon—he told me he had seen Chadwick and he did not think he would issue the warrants or that he thought it was better to bring the case before Judge Bonham and if he would leave the thing open so that he would take the responsibility he would issue warrants for the vouchers He told me he was going to bring this suit, and wanted me to see Judge Bonham and talk with him about these claims I told him I would see Judge Bonham and that the judge and I were intimate friends I think this is the last conversation I had with Mitchell on the subject until he had argued this mandamus when I had another talk with him He told me he thought he had the best of the case that he believed he was right and that Chadwick ought to issue the warrants I told him I had not seen Judge Bonham that I had had no opportunity He then told me "If we fail to get this through the courts I will have to leave it to Dolph Dodd and you and I will assist all I can to help you but you know I will have other business" In this conversation he asked if the claims were just I told him they were but that some of the things were charged high

Q—When was the next conversation if any? A—I do not remember of having any more with Mr Mitchell until the legislature met Mitchell then spoke to me about the claim again about electing officers—president of the senate and speaker of the house—that would be friendly towards this claim At one of the conversations Dodd was present and Mallory's name was mentioned as speaker of the house In that conversation I objected to Mallory I said I did not think we had better trust him Mitchell said Dodd would look after Mallory and if Mallory did not make Dodd certain promises he never would get to be speaker that Caples wanted it. He then told me says he "This legislature Bill, is terribly mixed"—just talking as men will do on politics Says he "I do not know who is going to be president but if Fay is elected can you control him?" I told him I thought I could that Jim and I were particular friends and I thought I could get him to appoint the committee I wanted I think this is about all the talk I had with him I might have had more.

Q—State what took place between Mr Dolph and you on the occasion referred to by Mr Gearin? A—Well on the evening before the committee made out their report I took some evidence—evidence Mr Dolph told me to get I took some affidavits and brought them before the committee this evening Mr Dolph had asked me to take the affidavits of certain witnesses as it was getting near the end of the session and it would save time I took these affidavits before the committee along with a certified copy of an indictment against Mr Patton the clerk of the committee, which I had got from Jackson county Mr Dolph authorized me to read them but when I commenced to read he ordered me to sit down but I kept on reading I was rather proud of my production He ordered me to sit down a second time and I sat down. He said he would take the papers and read them over and give me an answer in the morning In the morning when before the committee he handed me the papers back—a part of them—and said they had concluded to admit a certain part but some of it they would not admit. I said "If you don't admit it I will go to the body that made you and I will get them to admit it." He then said "If you will leave out that part where it refers to me and other parties (that statement in the book but I hardly know it now it was cut down so much—names cut out of it) if you will leave out that much" he said, "you will not object to my report I am no enemy of yours you mistake me, I am willing to do you all the justice I can" I told him I wanted them papers admitted, that they would prove to the legislature that what I said concerning Patton was true He made use of the words that Patton was not on trial; it was me He then said something about "keep truth on your side" He said "You know these things are not true" I said "I know they are true. Dolph," I said, "you are not smart enough to catch me you came here expecting to catch me on these claims but I have got you and I propose to keep my thumb on you.' He said, 'Don't insult me.' I said, "I would not know how to insult you, you are no gentleman but you are stinging under my lash, I have got you and I propose to hold right you there;"

Q—Was anything further said? A—He stepped to the door and I told him if he wanted to settle it in any other way to walk down to the street.

Mr Bronaugh—Q—Was Mr Gearin there? A—Not then Mr Gearin was in the habit of rushing out suddenly—in fact he said he was disgusted

Mr Cronin—Q—Did you say you would warm him or use any words to that effect? A—Warming does not sound like me I think I said "I will make it very hot for you before I am through with you"

Q—Do you recollect the conversation in the secretary of state's office when Mr Brown was present A—I do

Q—State to the jury what that conversation was what was said and what there was about it A—Well in the secretary of state's office there is a very large map of Oregon You can go behind that map and no one will see you Brown and Dolph were behind this map Brown stood there with one portion of the papers in his hand Dolph had the other part and was going over them I jumped right around behind the map Says I "Mr Brown, I hold you responsible for them papers and what does not appear in the printed report I will hold you responsible for" Mr Dolph said "That part of this don't belong" Says I "There is nothing there but what the legislature has authorized to be printed" Dolph says "Go away from me" I said "I have got nothing to do with you Let Mr Brown alone let him get these things printed as the legislature has ordered" Says he "How dare you talk to me that way" I said "Mr Dolph you touch them papers again and I will knock you down" "You will," says he running his hand in his pocket I put my hand behind me and said "Take your hand out of your pocket" He jerked his hand out and said, "I have not got anything" I was bluffing and I thought he was I did not think there was any danger of either of us fighting I had no pistol, and I do not suppose he had He made use of the words something like, "I will show you you dare not talk to a senator the way you talk to me." I then said "Sir I am more than your superior in any respect" Just about that time Brown dodged around and got away He goes on a perfect scoot at any time, he is a quick man Then the man that testified this morning stepped in and said "We don't want anything of this"

At this stage—6 15 P M—the court adjourned until 9 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning and the jury who were not allowed to leave the court all day were locked up for the night

REVIVAL MEETINGS.—THE TIDE STILL RISING.

Notwithstanding the hour, 8 30, is very early to get together an audience still the audience-room of the Presbyterian church was well filled yesterday morning Many new faces were to be seen and the old veterans were on hand and seemed to snuff the scent of battle from afar Mr Hammond was absent he having gone to the Cascades for rest and to view the scenery of the Columbia. The meeting was led by Rev John Thompson of Oakland who took for the subject of his morning reading Jacob, and held him up as an example of the power of prevailing prayer and one worthy the emulation of all Christians Many were there inquiring the way, and all seemed to take hold with energy and spirit The Rink was well filled last evening Rev John Thompson leading off in a few general remarks to Christians present, hoping that they would spur up and not be so cold in the matter spoke of several English lords who had been converted under the preaching of Moody and Sankey and had gone out to labor in the field as Evangelists That from these meetings men might be sent out who would gather their thousands and ten thousands Mr Hammond came to the front and made his excuse for being away during the day Said that he did not know what sent him up to the Cascades, until they got over to Vancouver and saw 150 soldiers coming on board, and then it dawned upon him he was sent to preach to them At this point he ordered out scouts to hold an open air meeting Capt Wilkinson, Revs Mr Bentley and Pierce and other aids, went out upon the skirmish line.

He commenced his regular discourse by taking the story of the prodigal son for a text, and said that this story was first told by one who never preached without telling a story—"Without a parable spake he not unto them" He divided his sermon into three parts—the prodigal's departure, the prodigal's return and the prodigal's reception. Mr Hammond spoke about forty minutes He was interrupted by the return of the scouts who came in with a large detachment of recruits They came in singing The audience broke out with the song "I must be a lover of the Lord" This brought the Rev. Mr Thompson to his feet who said he hoped that next time they would go further up town and invite the saloon-keepers on their way back, and thought if they could only find a converted "cornet" it would help them greatly. Mr Hammond resumed his sermon, and after the close and inquiry meeting was held Mr. H asked young converts, seekers Christians and those who intended to be saved sometime, to rise up After this he asked any infidels, who were there, to show their colors by rising to their feet One man and one woman rose

Morning meeting at 8:30 at the Presbyterian church Meeting for children at the rink at 7 and for adults at 7 30 P M.

Who can doubt it Do we not every day see the vigorous and clear headed pushing on to fortune and the feeble and brain befogged tarrying by the way" Health gives energy What a healthy mind conceives a healthy body is prompt to execute Difficulties which deter the invalid altogether the vigorous man surmounts at a bound If we would be successful let us first be healthy The initial step to be taken toward arriving at that condition is to rally the failing energies of the system As a renovant of decaying vital power Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be justly recommended in preference to all other tonics since its superiority as an invigorant is the subject of daily demonstration But it is far more than a simple recuperant of physical strength it is a prompt remedy for bodily irregularities particularly of the stomach bowels and liver and a reliable preventive of maladies begotten of miasma impure water, exposure and exhaustion the bad effects of which it invariably counteracts.

TUESDAY MORNING JUNE 29, 1875

WILLAMETTE BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

Second Day.

After an hour spent in prayer the association first permanently organized by electing brother Carey Johnson as moderator and Clinton Latourette as secretary then proceeded to business. Among other things it was decided to hold the next annual meeting at Portland; the introductory sermon to be by Rev Mark Bailey, president of McMinnville college, alternate Rev J T Huff of Oregon City.

In the report of foreign missions the work for the Chinese in Portland was spoken of as foreign in its nature and it was recommended that the burden be borne by all, etc. Rev Dong Gong was then called for on the Chinese mission in Portland. He said the work had been going on about eight months. It proved to him and his countrymen that Christians loved their neighbors as themselves. Mr Dean works hard all day in the shop and teaches every night and gets up early in the morning too. Ten have been baptized and love their Saviour, and all in the school have quit worshiping idols; they know too much to bow down to paper, etc. The Hindoo nation is a large one, but they have many heathen notions. The wife must die with her husband if she goes to heaven, so they think. Burmese throw their children to crocodiles to please their gods—poor benighted heathen. God has blessed you here with the truths of the Bible and you ought to teach them to others. God commands it. The speaker went on to explain that we were all made by the same God alike, and that circumstances of climate, water, air had made all the change which shows itself in color, size, etc.

Afternoon Session.

Mrs. Briggs spoke about the blessings in conversions and other ways that had grown out of this Chinese work in Portland, urged the importance of caring for the education of Chinese women; referred to what the Methodists were doing in San Francisco.

Mrs Fain—Spoke about the importance of investing in this work here above that in foreign fields, and white missionaries, suggested that the Sunday schools give what they have been sending to foreign fields to this work at home, say to educate Sam Bo, &c.

Dong Gong—We must plant the seed. We cannot make it grow. God only can do that, but we must plant it. God will water and give the sun, but we won't get a crop unless we plant the seed. Two others were converted when I was. They went to work and converted others. When I was in China I said to a brother go. No white man dare go there; it was not convenient for him to go; he couldn't go but Chinamen went. I tell one brother you give him money, he say all right. I write San Francisco to my friend, not Christians, you send him money to go preach. $40 come first time, next time $30, and they say we pay all his expenses, etc. Now there are two Chinese missionaries at work in that place, and they are supported by Chinese, not Christians, but who want to be friendly to this work. Now you are not working for nothing. You will get your reward in heaven. These sisters will then realize the magnitude of what they are doing—everything will then be as plain as a b c.

Elder Mark Bailey—I think there is a wondrous growth here in Oregon. If a man goes a praying real hard he will soon give in proportion. Portland may stand and fight McMinnville college and work for missions and in ten years she will be praying for colleges. Who are the men that give the money? Who are the men that make the money? Are they not the educated? Portland church wants money, McMinnville College wants money, Dong Gong wants money, and I am glad it is so. And if Portland church keeps on lifting as she has, she will come to us next year with greater demands for money, but we must not cut off the source of supply. Education is what brings the money. There are many young men pleading to be prepared for gathering this very fruit, and we should not dare neglect them; we must not neglect the organizing and leading force or the cause will suffer.

Mr. C. E Bryant referred to the resolution about monthly concerts for missions; hoped the pastors and delegates would urge its faithful observance upon the churches, no matter whether they be rich or poor. Let them come together, each having a word of information about missions and contributing their mite however small it may be. Let the interest and desire to give be awakened and the means will be found, &c.

Rev. J. Wicher—I am in this work every inch of me; there ain't much to be sure. I can't do as much as some of the rest of you, but I preach in eight different places, etc.

Mr Beezley—I was raised a predestinarian and I believe if God predestinated anything it was that I should not believe that doctrine.

Rev. J W Short spoke very feelingly about Klickitat, asked for prayer, etc.

STREET MEETING.

At 7 o'clock there was a street meeting in front of Mount Hood Saloon. Bro Carey Johnson read and made some very touching remarks. Then Rev Dong Gong the Chinese missionary took the stand, and after requesting the large crowd to gather close addressed them so earnestly and feelingly that we saw the tears glistening in many eyes. He told about his own people worshiping idols, and said he was afraid some of the white people worshiped idols also, and this he explained with wonderful clearness and originality. He addressed the children for a few moments so plainly that one little boy thought he was a white man fixed up for a Chinaman.

The ladies will hold a meeting to-morrow evening at the same place.

SUNDAY

Three of the pulpits in the place were supplied by members of the association. Rev Mark Bailey preached a rich sermon upon the great commission, enlarging upon the direction to reach all nations.

We were not present at the ladies meeting in the evening, but were told it was addressed by Mrs Fain and others and attended by a large crowd. Later in the evening an earnest appeal to sinners was made by Rev Mr Bond. One came forward and united with the church and the indications are that others will soon follow. Rev J. T. Huff and others will remain to continue the meetings, &c.

There are no important features developed in the opening of business this week; the market in all essentials moving along in the accustomed channels. Money is offering in small sums by outside parties rather more frequently than usual and terms are quite moderate for this latitude. The city banks are not scenes of the greatest amount of activity but are doing a fair business of the ordinary character for the season. Commercial paper is scarce in the market and if gilt edged is readily placed on the usual terms. Loans on real estate security are occasionally sought but not with great frequency. Those offering it are generally able to secure all needed accommodations without much difficulty if the property upon which it is sought be at all eligible.

Altogether the same dull and quiet feeling experienced during a great part of the past two weeks is witnessed, nor are we likely to see a change from this condition for a few weeks to come. The spring season proved as satisfactory as could be expected, and merchants entertain hopes of at least a prosperous business during the fall months, but in most departments of trade there is no general spirit of speculation and dealers are going ahead with their preparations with a great deal of caution. There have been some shrinkages in prices and lest they should continue large stocks are not considered as desirable to carry as the money. Hence merchants prefer to select carefully to be well assured of the wants of the trade before making heavy purchases.

The export and import trade shows but little activity at this period in the season at any time though the volume for the month about closing has been about up to the average for former years. Such, however has been the difficulty with which coasting vessels have been able to secure outward cargoes that several accustomed to run on the route between this city and San Francisco have gone in other directions for business during the lull in freights here which is only temporary.

The produce market is not more brisk than other departments of trade and no change in quotations is noticed.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship John L Stephens from San Francisco will be due at this port to-morrow evening.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ or organs whose action they derange and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns.

In this horrid situation ... closes the scene. Let ... tend to those who are ... horrible, life-destroying maladies ... cured for and cured ... immediately to DR. DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will give each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn to certificates, ... the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers ... carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets, for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting false titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.
